ULTEAMONTANISM. This Ultramontanism is just now attracting much attention Italy, Spain, France, and Germany are all being seriously troubled and agitated by it. Futher Hyacinthe is just now engaged at Geneva in a crusade against it. THE UNIVERSITY BOAT BACE. The University Bont Race bas of gourse been the leading topic of the week. I cannot tell you The papers may state what they please, but three to one were offered on Cambridge on the morning of the race with no takers. The result proved the correctness of these anticipa. tions, for although the Oxford boat came in three lengths astern only, the men were so complately used up, that-well, they could not ret out of the boat-the Cambridge men being still in good working order. The concourse of people was enormous the day was in fact kept as a jubilee, or a boliday, the streets of the metropolis being as empty as if it were Sanday. This is a most unaccountable national fantasy. If the winning orew were to send a challenge to the London Rowing Clab and Kingston combined, I venture to think that comparatively few people would go to see the struggle. The race would probably be in favour of London against a united crew of both Universities, but no one would care so much about it as they do about the University race. America, to rouse the people. Those who care conveyance of troops and ammunition; and about the best horse-racing soldom trouble themselves to go to the Derhy or Goodwood; they go to Newmarket, where the best horse-racing is to the seen. te much from the inschools and the divisions the 7th in students of Trinity College may contest for the Carlists hold their ground, and the disorders in Spain make progress. The very confusion and ragueness of the reports being the extent to which civil war has superseded the orderly march of affairs; communications being interrupted, and each faction in each province doing its best to further its own ends, no matter at what sacrifice to the general tranquillity. Amid all the mist of contradictory statements just one fact looms out with ominous clearness, and that is the reluctance with which the regular troops act against the common enemy. If the Carlists are even checked, the success is not followed up; if a new general is appointed and collects a force numerically strong, he is at once paralysed by the insubordination of his own men. Thus the Carlists, left to themselves, cut the railways, stop the mails, live on the villagers, and blockade the country towns. The miserable peasantry and farmers, harassed and outraged by both sides, are numble to trade, to labour, or to pay taxes; the them, must necessarily be against them, and revenue suffers when funds are most wanted; nonnces the state of the national finances to be "deplorable." To complete the picture, we have an element of farce introduced by a solemn announcement from Modrid to the effect that the Carlists are preparing a loan of Rt0,000,000 reals. To an outsider it would seem an open question which of the two operations is the more buzardous, a loan to the actual Govern. ment or one to the Carlists, since impecuniosity and bad management are conspicuous in both; but the fact that people should even speak of a Carlist loan as possible is a feature worth noting. Meanwhile the famous fighting curs of Santa Cruz has, it appears, published a vindication of his proceedings against the attacks made by foreign journalists, who thought that when the Carlists took to flogging prisoners it was quite time to cry balt. His reverence repels the churges, and, to show the pature of his action, publishes the instructions addressed by Dou Carlos to his chiefs. If these are correctly given, the object of the Pretender would appear to be to carry un war in the mildest-mannered fashion known to history. Opinions are to be respected; officers and soldiers who are taken prisoners are to be released ; The railways are not to be touched, unless the companies, after negotiation, refuse to stop the removed and the fortified stations destroyed, This reads very well; but the question is, Have not the commanders bettered their instructions? As the war bas bitherto been carried on the Carlist Generals have committed figgrant atrocities in the way of shooting peasants and burning villages. The applogetic missive of the cura, however, is a sign of deference to public opinion; and that, at least, is something.

SCENE AT THE WRECK OF THE "LALLA ROOKH."

An "extraordinary scene," according to the Cornich Telegraph, took place at the wrick of the Lalla Rookh at Salcombe. On the arrival of Lloyd's agent from Dartmouth he made an offer of £1 to each man who would swim through the surf and reach the ship, and £10 if they could unbend all the sails and get them ashore. To attempt to reach the vessel by such means was most hazardous, yet several embraced the offer. On their way every now and then the sea would break over them with great force, and one man nearly lost his life, while, those on altere watched with breathless anxiety the struggles of the men with the heavy sea that rolled in, tremulous lest any of them should lose their lives; but all eventually, gained the ridicules English feeling on the subject. ship. THE COUNTESS GUICCIOLI Guiccioli, Marquise de Boissy. She has just ade. died at Florence after a long illness, at the age of little more than 70 years. The daughter of an Italian noble of high family, the Count, Gamba of Ravenna, she was born at the very commencement of the present century; and when in 1819 she first mel Byron at Venice, though little more than a child in years, she had lately become the second or third wife of another nobleman, the Count Guiccieli, who was reported to be as rich as Ormsus, and in reality was old enough to be he grandfather: The marriage was by no means one of her own seeking; for, according to the customary tenour in young married lady residing in that neighof family arma sements in Italy, the young bourhood. At last he warmly pressed her to Teresa was taken straight from the oneventwhere she was brought up, in order to become the flancee of a stranger. She was not more than 16 years of ago when Lord Byron first met her at the receptions of the Countess Abruzzi. Meanwhile the Count himself, who was fonder of money than of his home, seems to have been equally unsuspicious and cartless as to the sentiments which sprang up between his young wife and the English nobleman. In the autumn of that same year he was " called away from wife and ford Byron to the enjoyment of each | Guiceioli was obliged to return to Venice, and it was by her husband's consent that Lord Count bimself appears to have taken a sordid rather than a serious view of the question, if we may judge from the fact that one morning his young wife received from him a letter, not expressing any censure of her conduct, but suggesting that she should "persuade her noble admirer to transfer to his credit the same of £10,000 of English money." "This letter," whys Lady C. RELIGIOUS DISTURBANCES AT BETHLEHEM. -According to the Levant Herald, the religious disturbances which recently took place at Betblebem arose out of the circumstance that the Latin clergy had bung some new tapestry with a Latin inscription upon it in the church The Greek Patriarch considers Latin inscriptions unorthodox, and the Levant Herald thinks thut a somewhat complicated dispute is likely to be the result.

MARINE SIGNALS .- The merchant ships of the United States are to adopt the international code of marine signals in use among the ships of England and of other nations, The American merchant service has no fixed code, but usually their signals are those of Marryat's code. Some of the newer vessels have, bowever, adopted the international code; but there is no uniformity, and this causes great confusion, while to a ocrtain extent it has prevented help being given to vessels which are disabled. The international code has been adopted by the navy of the United States for some time, and the Secretary of the Treasury recently prepared a Bill which he sent to the Senute Committee of Commerce, making the adoption of the code obligatory upon the merchant service for all to issue Policies of Insurance, at the current ressels sailing upon the lakes or bigh seas which are over 200 tons burthen. This Bill has been introduced into the Senate, and no doubt will become law.

BALLAD FROM FAUST. (From the Translation of "Funt," by C. Kegan

. There was a King in Thule Was faithful to the grave, Him when she died his true love A golden chalice gave.

Twas dearer than all treasure; Whene'er he sat to dine: Tears filled his eyes, of pleasure That this cup held the wine. And when he found him dying,

His cities widely lying, But not the chalice fair. He bid to service loyal His knights of gentle blood.

He left his rightful heir

Where stood andestral, royal, His castle o'er the flood. .. The drinker drank full slowly,

To feel life's latest glow,

To drink no drop-again.

Then threw the chalics boly Among the waves below. He saw it falling, filling, Then sinking in the main, Then closed his eyes, right willing
